

Sarah M. Bexell is a Research Associate Professor in the Institute for Human-Animal Connection at the University of Denver, USA. She is also the Director of Conservation Education at the Chengdu Research Base of Giant Panda Breeding, China. Her research investigates the intersections of human overpopulation, overconsumption, biodiversity decline and animal rights.